“ As family and friends morn your life that was taken so young, we share all the memories that you left behind. A smile, good deeds and the simple times spent together. We hurt at the thought of not seeing your face or hearing your voice. At not being able to watch you as you grow older. We hurt because someone special has left us behind. Words don't always express the feeling of emptiness we have to learn to accept. Memories will live on forever, but our hearts are void as you have gone on to your next life. We can find comfort in knowing that while this life has passed, your new life has begun in eternity with Jesus Christ our Lord and Savior. Your star will forever burn bright my nephew. May God give all of us the strength of your memory.

Bub

“ I, like so many others, have had a hard time processing and wrapping my head around this...SO SENSELESS!..

Jessie had worked for my husband (Denny) off and on for several years...

On Oct 4th last year Denny suffered a massive stroke... while Denny was in the rehab facility, Jessie came to visit with Denny for his birthday...most recently

Jessie had been helping me at home with him...giving Denny "guy time" that he had been lacking and needed...I will forever be indebted to him for stepping up and helping during our time of need...

The world truly lost a beautiful person both inside and out...not biologically family, but family nonetheless...he touched so many and will be missed by all...our hearts break for the family...time doesn't heal all wounds, but with time you'll cry a little less...memories that were once sad, after time, you'll find yourself smiling at those same memories...our hearts will never be whole again, but Jessie will live on in our memories...

Fly high my friend/family...keep an eye on us all, and take care of your family...

“ Jessie - I'm so hoping - no, let me say it another way, I KNOW you are aware of how much Denise & Charlie Baker loves you and cares so much for you, as I know your Dad does too. You left us way too soon - no one was ready for your time to be up!!!

As for me, my greatest memory will be having the opportunity to see you and talk with you and hug you last summer when a lot of the cousins finally got together for the first time. Stay true to yourself. We will see each other soon. Take care Sweetie.....Fly high and keep a watchful eye on me.

“ Jessie, It's very hard for me to put my feelings about you into words! I'm having a very hard time accepting that your gone, my heart is breaking right now, I'm so hurt and heartbroken, and very angry, that you were taken from us so young! So what I'm going to do to help me through this is remember the last time I saw you, up at your grandparents on there deck on Easter, I remember you holding that little chickadee on your finger with your contagious smile, and posing for me as I took your picture! That's a forever memory of you that, I'll cherish the rest of my life! I Love You my precious nephew and you'll be missed by many! I won't say goodbye because, I'll see you again! Until that time, R.I.P. my precious, Jessie! 😭

“ Ginger, I can't think of just one single memory. I have many. For all of which I am so grateful and blessed. Each chat meant more I think than you realized. Last time I saw you I was still struggling with things and you just talked with me. Cracked some of your jokes, laughed, and shared that smiled Before I knew it I felt better and was laughing & smiling too. You had that way about you. And one of the biggest hearts I've ever known. Sure you were all tough but you were also so kind and sweet. Always there to be counted on too. When I think of you I also think of how fiercely loyal you were and how you stood up for people, especially those you loved and cared about. And you were definitely someone who knew what family means. Now there's another huge hole ripped into this family that can never be filled. It's not fair. I'm so angry. I'll never hear that laugh or see that smile again. Never share another chat or another hug. No more new memories. He took that. I pray he rots. I know you and Jay are together, partying it up, and watching over us but it's not the same. You were a light put out too soon. There just aren't words... I love you Ginger. Wish I had the chance to tell you so. Fly high now and give those this family has lost my love. Gone but never ever ever forgotten
